Dear Mr. Weisberg,

Well October has rolled around once more. It is hard to believe that it will be a year ago this month since we last met. Thank you for your comments on my dissertation. I was (and still am) very embarassed that I misspelled "Blakey" and "Dealey" throughout the dissertation. I must have gone over it 50 times... My hat is off to you for your self-publications that are, in my opinion, virtually error-free. Experience will beat youth every time!

Philadelphia is OK, I prefer D.C. I have never seen a city so unmanageable by car! It baffles me to no end! Now isn't the best time in my life. My lady and I parted ways when I came here — I guess mobility has its costs...

Once I get a bit lighter of a workload, I am going to sit down and write an article from my dissertation. I think I will send it to you before I send it to a journal so any embarassing mistakes will be noticed.

La Salle is a pretty school. Its on the corner of 20th & Olney which unfortunately places it in a bad neighborhood. I have been doing my running in Germantown, which still has some very nice sections. The students are a little disappointing – they aren't as sharp as the kids at Penn State.

Well drop me a line when you have the time and give my best to your wife Lil.

Sincerely,

Bruce McKinney
